

What is claimed is:

- 1                    1.        A subsystem comprising a storage control unit and a plurality of 2       storage units for storing data from a host computer wherein:
3                    the storage control unit includes a cache memory for temporarily storing 4       data transferred between the host computer and the storage units; and 5                    a processor having a memory for controlling the storage control unit which 6       processor stores management information for data stored in the cache memory.